

The Managing Director and Board of Directors recognise the importance of occupational health, safety and welfare for employees of the Company and are committed to providing and maintaining a safe place of work, irrespective of the nature and location of the workplace, as far as reasonably practicable. We also accept our responsibilities for other persons such as learners, visitors, contractors and members of the public who may be affected by our activities as well as our responsibilities under the Health and Safety Act 1974.

The Directors take full responsibility for health and safety but encourage all members of staff to have the same pro-active approach to health and safety in the workplace. The Company intends to provide high standards and ensure compliance with relevant legislation in respect of employees, contractors, visitors and all other persons.

This statement and corresponding policies and risk assessments will be reviewed annually and if required revised in the light of legislation change with the view to eliminate, reduce or control health and safety risks based on their assessment. Safety will be monitored at all levels in the Company with the aim of maintaining our high standards and continually progressing to meet and surpass all legislative requirements.

All employees with specific health and safety responsibilities will be made aware of their obligations and given appropriate training.

The full support and cooperation of all employees in the company is vital to achieve the objectives of the policies.

This statement and specific safety policies have been agreed by the Directors of Poultec Training Limited.
